

Amsterdam University Press (AUP) has a longstanding tradition in open access publishing. All AUP Open Access titles are published online and marketed internationally and included in the international Open Access library OAPEN and the directory of Open Access books DOAB. AUP offers high quality service and competitively pricing.

Open Access journals:

Sponsored Open Access

The journal is fully sponsored by an institute, academic society or research group, often the owners of the journal. There are no fees for authors.

APC-driven Open Access

Often referred to as 'Gold Open Access', this model relies on author fees to fund the journal. This model is used by most commercial publishers.

Membership-supported

Institutes, societies or research groups fund OA publications from their researchers; a membership fee, flat-fee or pre-paid amount is used to cover the costs for publication. Unaffiliated Authors pay an APC, institutional authors are not charged individually.

Open Access books:

Sponsored OA

The author has funds available to support OA publication, through their institute, funder, government or society.

Knowledge Unlatched

Amsterdam University Press can nominate your book for inclusion in the Knowledge Unlatched initiative; upon acceptance this initiative ensures Open Access free of charge for authors.
